Since 2016, the Minnesota Wind Chill have made the Central Division playoffs in all but one season and have finished .500 or better each year. After falling to the Chicago Union in back-to-back Central Division Championship Games the last two seasons, the Wind Chill will look to overcome a handful of offseason losses to make it to their first ever Championship Weekend in 2023, taking place at TCO Stadium in Minnesota this August. The Wind Chill will have some extra motivation to claim the top spot in the division and carry home field advantage into the final weekend of games.
